

ABSTRACT

A technique that enables the sine and cosine branches within a PLL module to be obtained relatively easily and efficiently is described. According to the 5 technique, the computation operations requiring a computation load, such as calculation of sine and cosine functions, are performed mostly once per a digital sampled signal, whilst relatively simple operations, such as multiplication and accumulations, are performed for every frame.

60
61
62
63
64
65
66
67
68
69
70
71
72
73
74
75
76
77
78
79
80
81
82
83
84
85
86
87
88
89
90
91
92
93
94
95
96
97
98
99
100